Canada (and Ontario) has one of the highest levels of criminalizing people living with HIV in the world, but communities have been mobilizing to resist and the tide may be turning.

What has been achieved, and how?
What work still needs to be done?
What lies ahead for resisting HIV criminalization in Ontario following the provincial election?

Join leading activists including people living with HIV, community organizations and human rights advocates for this community dialogue.

Please note that although tickets are not required for this event, it would be appreciated if you register to attend. You can register and also find more information about the event here:
